

Cancer Cell: advancing with the community

ABOUT THE LECTURE

Dr Steve Mao will share with the audience new initiatives at Cell Press to promote ecosystem building and serve authors and scientific community. In addition, he will introduce Cancer Cell, his editorial team, the editorial and peer-review process, and their interested areas.

Speaker: Dr Steve Mao

Editor-in-Chief

Cancer Cell

Publishing Director, Life & Medical Sciences

Cell Press

Host: Prof Wang Hongyan

Deputy Director

Programme in Neuroscience & Behavioural Disorders

Duke-NUS Medical School

Date: Monday, 14 November 2022

Time: 3.00 PM - 4.00 PM

Venue: For in-person attendance:
Meeting Room 7C, Level 7, Duke-NUS Medical School

For virtual seminar (via Zoom):

Link: https://nus-sg.zoom.us/j/86854055725?

pwd=MmNTc2hCUHIYUG5nd3RHSXd2c3k2dz09

Meeting ID: 868 5405 5725

Passcode: 977150

Contact Ms Kathleen Chan (kathleen.chan@duke-nus.edu.sg)

Person: Duke-NUS Research Affairs Department

ABOUT THE SPEAKER

After receiving a Ph.D. in Cell Biology from UT Southwestern, Steve Mao completed his postdoctoral training at Cold Spring Harbor Laboratory and Harvard University. Steve started as an editor at Cell in 2012 and then joined Science in 2017 as the molecular biology, biotechnology and synthetic biology editor. Steve recently joined Cancer Cell as Editor-in-Chief in 2020.

 Please be informed that photography and videography may be taken by Duke-NUS authorized personnel during the event for publicity purposes.*